About IASSIDD

The International Association for the Scientific Study of Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (IASSIDD) is an international and inter-disciplinary scientific non-governmental organization with official relations with the World Health Organization. IASSIDD's mission is to promote worldwide research and an exchange of information on intellectual and related disabilities. The association (originally named the International Association for the Scientific Study of Mental Deficiency) was founded in 1964. It sponsors regional conferences as well as a triennial World Congress, conducts studies of research issues and practices, and publishes reports and publications in conjunction with a variety of publishers throughout the world. IASSIDD is the first and only worldwide group dedicated to the scientific study of intellectual disability.
